

Sydney, Australia. UXC Training Group is pleased to announce that the Australian College of Change Management (ACCM) has formed an alliance partnership with the Change Management Institute (CMI).

We look forward to working with CMI to enhance the profile of change management skills and knowledge through the provision of change management education to Australian business says Lynn Nortje, Director of UXC Training Group.

The alliance partnership means that ACCM will offer courses at discounted prices to members of CMI. ACCM has also already aligned its course offerings to the competency framework developed by CMI.

We are on the same page as CMI when it comes to change management so it makes good sense that people who are members of CMI can strengthen their skills through ACCM and being able to receive a discount makes it a win-win says Stephen Dantier from ACCM.

ACCM brings the best offerings in the market having established other relationships with expert providers such as Change Tracking, New Intelligence for their unique Human Skills courses and Kandula for their focused communication courses.

From our successful national launches held last year and now this new alliance partnership ACCM is cementing its place as the destination for change management education and building organisational capability say Lynn Nortje.
