

AXS-One Featured in Best IT&T Companies in 2001

AXS-One (AMEX:AXO), a global provider of e-Business solutions, has been ranked as one of the most promising information technology and telecommunications companies in new research conducted by Corporate Research Foundation and published by HarperCollins.

This publication features a number of companies from within the IT sector considered by the CRF team of writers and researchers to be those companies positioned to make a significant impact on the future.

These writers are made up of many of Australia's leading business journalists from publications such as The Australian Financial Review, The Sydney Morning Herald, The Age and The Australian.

The profile covers relevant aspects of the company including strategy and management, operations and markets and human resources. It gives an insight into issues such as strategic direction, workplace culture and human resource strategies and development.

AXS-One rated highly in the areas of flexibility & Innovation, Quality of Management, International Orientation and Human Resources Priorities.

This is the third year that AXS-One in Australia has been recognised by independent bodies such as GartnerGroup, Strategic Research and now Corporate Research Foundation. In 2000 and 1999 AXS-One was voted the No 1 software vendor in a survey of CFOs conducted by GartnerGroup and Strategic Research respectively.

It is very pleasing to once again receive recognition from a prestigious industry body such as CRF. It reinforces our strategy of providing the best value for money web based solutions which are able to be deployed both internally and externally. said Ossie Pisanu, Vice President, Asia Pacific, AXS-One.
