

Hospitality Warehouse Goes Live: Reduces Purchasing Costs Using AXS-One Software

e-Procurement initiatives for both internal and external partners benefit organisations

AXS-One Inc. (AMEX: AXO), a leading global provider of e-business solutions, today announces the start of operations of its joint venture in South Africa with Cendant owned RCI southern Africa, Hospitality Warehouse, and their Preferred Vendor Program, which has evolved from a simple manual service involving a handful of vendors into a complete e-commerce procurement hub. Hospitality Warehouse is the latest client in a series of e-procurement initiatives that AXS-One has implemented globally. The major differentiator is AXS-Ones financial applications background combined with its ability to quickly deliver robust, high volume transactions that can be integrated into a clients existing business processes.

The technology solution provided by AXS-One for Hospitality Warehouse, TransAXS Procurement, manages the end-to-end procurement cycle. It enables users to purchase directly from electronic shopping catalogues. It also allows the organisations purchasing function to maintain local catalogues of products and services, maintaining control over costs and the source of supplies. AXS-Ones TransAXS Procurement solution maintains full control of the routing of purchase orders for approval and checking against budgets in an automated, electronic delivery system that adheres to the established business rules.

This latest milestone is a good example of the breadth and robust attributes of the AXS-One technology. The same engine that powers the Hospitality Warehouse exchange is implemented in 12 similar procurement sites world-wide, reducing costs, improving purchasing efficiency, and providing more value for the customers money says John Rade, president and chief executive officer of AXS-One. Our ability to quickly implement end-to-end procurement systems makes us the vendor of choice with local governments, retailers, and manufacturers. We are pleased to have Hospitality Warehouse as a client and look forward to a rewarding relationship.
