

Kyocera appoints national distribution manager

Kyocera, a leading document imaging solutions company, has announced the promotion of Greg Wallis to the newly created position of National Distribution Manager, Australia. He will be based in Kyoceras Sydney head office.

His new responsibilities include overseeing both Kyocera national distributors Tec Pacific and recently appointed Ingram Micro and all of the companys other state distribution partners around Australia.

Greg has been with Kyocera for two years. His previous role was NSW Regional Sales Manager.

Announcing this appointment, Kyocera Mita National Sales Manager Peter Finn, said, Greg has worked tirelessly in the NSW branch over the past year developing a cohesive and effective team of sales professionals. He has seen the fruits of his labour with the wining of several contracts including those with Sydney University, Sydney University Library and the Northern Institute of TAFE.

It is largely due to his efforts and those of his team that our position has strengthened in a very competitive market, he added.

About Kyocera Corporation

Established in 1959 and listed on the US stock exchange, the Kyocera Corporation group of companies has turnover in excess of 9 billion US dollars and is headquartered in Kyoto, Japan. With the Asia Pacific regional head office in Sydney and branch offices in Brisbane, Melbourne, Perth, Adelaide and Auckland, Kyocera Mita is one of the worlds leading manufacturers and distributors of document imaging solutions.

Kyocera is a company that is committed to the environment, offering digital copiers, networkable laser printers, wide format copier/printers and multifunction imaging solutions. Using innovative technology & product design, it produces products that offer a lower Total Cost of Ownership/ Total Cost of Service whilst reducing waste and pollution.