

Paul and Chris Galvin of Galvin

Engineering announced that as from the 30 June 2011, Peter Broley and Steve Moller, the current joint General Managers, will take full responsibility for the management and performance of Galvin Engineering. We believe that this new management structure is more sustainable for a dynamic national Company of our size and we are excited about the challenge of owning and directing a company that is entering its next ambitious growth phase. Chris and Paul Galvin have decided to focus more on the strategic and governance duties as owners and directors. Galvin

Engineering is a third generation family business that was established in 1947 and is highly regarded as a reliable manufacturer and designer of commercial tapware and related products for the hospital, aged care, correctional, education and food service markets. Steve Moller has been with the company since 2006, originally from New Zealand Steve settled in Perth with his wife and three children in 2004. He started at Galvin Engineering as the Safety & Business Development Manager before being promoted to General Manager of Operations. Peter Broley has been with the company since 2010 after moving from Sydney with his wife and two children. Peter is General Manager of Sales and Marketing.
