RON CREEVEY BEHIND NEW ALBUM AND DOCUMENTARY CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF HUTCHENCE

11 SECOND TEASER OF MICHAEL HUTCHENCE UNRELEASED MUSIC HAS BEEN RELEASED !

Sydney entrepreneur Ron Creevey, who runs Kings Cross studio and venue The X Studio and Helipad Records, has been working with LA-based record producer Danny Saber to release the unreleased music of Michael Hutchence under Helipad Records, as well as a documentary to mark the 20th anniversary of the death of Hutchence.

Creevey is exciting Michael Hutchence fans by unexpectedly dropping an 11-second teaser for the stunning unreleased song 'Kik It' – on his Facebook page. "I would say 'Kik It' is one of the best songs I have heard in a very long time. Michael's fans are hearing all sorts of stories in the media so today we are going to give them that 11-second sample. This will give fans a teaser to what is coming." Says Studio X founder, Ron Creevey.

'Kik It' will be featured in full when the final recordings of Michael Hutchence are released throughout 2017, leading up to the 20th anniversary in November 2017. In addition a TV documentary is close to being finished and will be released globally in the first quarter of 2017 featuring a host of Michael's never before seen personal possessions and documents relating to his life, including the last roll of film shot by Michael, several valuable guitars and a piano that has been in storage for over 20 years.

Michael Hutchence spent some of the final weeks of his life in Los Angeles with Danny Saber, writing and performing for his last time at the Viper room. There are 15 songs to be released.
