Privacy screens are a practical and aesthetically pleasing option to improve privacy for homeowners.

Privacy screens are a practical and aesthetically pleasing option to improve privacy for homeowners. Offered in a range of materials, colours and styles, privacy screens and louvres can add a touch of architectural design to your home, whilst securing areas that may otherwise be exposed, such as decks used for outdoor entertaining, your front fences and even your balconies.

As we move into winter, we still love to use our outdoor entertaining areas whenever we can, as a focus for family fun, relaxation and health; it's like having a vacation spot just outside the door. Installing a privacy screen provides an excellent method whereby you can enclose your patio or outdoor area to make it impervious to intruders whilst not limiting the views or the look of your home, and a privacy screen will complement an existing patio, carport or outdoor entertaining area

Allweather Shelters' privacy screens are designed to adapt to existing patio and screen enclosure structures, or to be engineered as a new addition to your home, providing a flexibility of design to create an outdoor area that can change the way you live. Product strength and performance are key factors in making a purchasing decision, and Allweather Shelter screens are designed and manufactured from the highest quality materials, and are engineered to comply with the relevant Australian Standards.

They work with you to design a screen that will suit your needs, providing an obligation free measure and quote, and their fixed price includes installation. On acceptance of the quote, if council approval is required, a detailed design by their draftsman is prepared for submission. In addition their registered building practitioners ensure that the screen is built to comply with the current regulations.
