

All Weather Shelters Answer the Question “How Can I Ensure My Patio is Built to Last”?

As All Weather Shelters explain, product strength and performance are key factors in making a purchasing decision and ensuring your patio is built to last.

As All Weather Shelters explain, product strength and performance are key factors in making a purchasing decision and ensuring your patio is built to last. Also, they guarantee that their patios and verandahs are designed and manufactured from the highest quality materials, and are engineered to comply with the relevant Australian Standards.

By using the right choice of design, an outdoor area will change the way you live, and your entertaining area becomes a focus for family fun, relaxation and health. It's like having a vacation spot just outside your door! Whether you want a patio extension, enclosed patio or patio with an opening roof, All Weather Shelters can help you design one that will suit your needs.

They will work with you to design a patio or verandah that will suit your needs, and will provide an obligation free measure and quote, keeping in mind their fixed price includes installation. On acceptance of their quote, their draftsman will prepare a detailed patio plan for council submission, and All Weather Shelters will manage the whole permit approval process for you. In addition, their registered building practitioners ensure that the patio is built to comply with the current regulations.

The Production team who have been with the company many years have developed detailed procedures that ensure quality shelter installations with minimum disruption, and their team of experienced administrators and installers pride themselves in advising, designing and building structures that will last for years.

All Weather Shelters use quality roofing products that have been tested to withstand the Australian climate, such as Sunclipse and Coolskin Shelter Systems. Established since 1973, their team have a wealth of experience to deliver the best possible outdoor roofing solution for your home, and their tradesmen are reliable and professional and have been with the company for over 25 years.

You can be assured that when choosing an All Weather Shelters product, you are choosing the finest and built by the leading patio builders in Melbourne, and for more information on patio builders Melbourne and pergolas please go to <https://allweathershelters.com.au> .
