

Andatech to donate 50% of January profits to the bushfire crisis

*Strategy.

Results.*

Victorian-based safety and wellness business, Andatech, will donate 50 per cent of its overall profits from all of January to the Salvation Army Disaster Appeal in response to the devastating bushfires around Australia.

Andatech is a 100% Australian owned company that designs, supplies and supports products such as alcohol and drug testing equipment and services, air quality products such as air purifiers and dehumidifiers, dash cams, home security systems and powerbanks.

“Australia needs help and we are pleased to be able to contribute to combating the bushfires and after care services once the fire danger has gone,” said Andatech CEO, Irwandy Tan.

“We chose the Salvation Army as their teams are activated at multiple locations where our customers may be located. Their teams deliver crucial support when and where it's needed, and stay as long as it takes to help local communities make a full recovery.”

For people who want to take advantage of Andatech's offer and support the disaster appeal at the same time, they simply make a purchase in-store or online within the month of January and 50 per cent of all Andatech profits will go to the Salvation Army Disaster Appeal.
