

Australian Author Signs Five-Book Publishing Deal US Publisher

Canberra born author Andrew Hackett has signed an multi book deal with New York publisher Holland House Publishing after his book Free From Fear became a bestseller. Andrew's Fearless series is the culmination of a complete system of practical tools and processes that will radically transform unhappy, unfulfilled life experiences into limitless success and abundance. "I am excited; truly excited," Hackett said. "I have been working with people for years now, and we have been getting some truly amazing results from the material that is now incorporated throughout the Fearless series." Hackett says his approach can be utilised by anyone, anywhere, irrespective of their own beliefs, culture or economic situation. "Years ago, I dedicated my life to helping everyday people get out of their fear-driven life experience. Too many people live in a constant and unsustainable state of stress, and it is leading to an epidemic of depression and anxiety disorders," he said. For that reason, Hackett believes a different perspective will empower people to reach for their natural-born potential, and the Fearless series is that different perspective. "This is a dream that has been lifetimes in the making," Andrew said. "I just want to help those that seek real, heart-warming change and show them what I have learnt, tested and experienced – not only in my own life, but in the lives of many people across the globe." Ralph Brogden, Holland House Publishing, New York said Andrew's first book's success paved the way for the deal. "We were interested in doing this epic five book series as well. Andrew has a real passion for helping people live better lives, and we are extremely pleased to partner with him again to help get his message out to the world," he said. Hackett says the book series is for anyone seeking a better life experience, anyone who is unhappy with the way their life has panned out, and anyone who believes the time is right for real, positive change in their life. "The Fearless series is applicable to all who seek limitless success," he said. "It seeks to challenge the old fear-driven ways, and establish some new, healthier beliefs that will enable anyone to start living in true abundance." The first book in the Fearless series will be available November 2018 on Amazon.com and other online booksellers. The remaining books in the series will be released sequentially throughout 2019.
