CIVENEX is Australia’s premier infrastructure expo. Organised yearly by the Institute of Public Works Engineering of Australia (NSW Division), the event is now in its 60th year of featuring new and innovative solutions for public works, local government and corporate clients.

Each year, thousands of potential buyers, from large and small businesses, to major contractors, and influencers and decision makers for councils, Federal and State Government departments, flock to CIVENEX in Sydney to see the latest products and solutions and witness live demonstrations.

This year’s CIVENEX will have new features, including seminars from “Dial Before You Dig”, which will showcase the importance of safe excavation, best practice guidelines, and asset protection. A Plant and Vehicle Management Seminar will also be available for limited seats only. State Government departments will also be at the event to give advice and answer questions on local government and public works projects and guidelines.

Entrance is free for all registered guests. Registration for CIVENEX 2015 is still on going.
