

Express Virtual Meetings Launches Online Video Conferencing Solution

One-click browser-based video conferencing without any software downloads

Melbourne – 5 September 2019 – Express Virtual Meetings, a leading provider of enterprise-grade cloud-based video conferencing, audio and managed conferencing solutions and part of the MNF Group, has launched its online video conferencing solution for desktop and mobile users.

Express Virtual Meetings' intuitive, no-fuss, online video conferencing solution is completely mobile and accessible via a web link. Participants can see and hear each other and share screens - facilitating a collaborative workspace for projects, presentations and the sharing of videos. There is nothing to download, not even for the meeting host. Apart from a reliable internet connection, no special equipment or a purpose-built-video room is required.

"As video conferencing is fast becoming a base-level expectation within the modern workplace, we are very excited to be able to offer our own, cloud-based video conferencing solution, built by our in-house development team at our MNF Group headquarters in Sydney," Andrea Goding, Express Virtual Meetings' General Manager said.

"This represents a win for the local Australian economy as we continue to keep jobs and dollars at home, which is something of a rarity in this fast-moving global market."

The convenience of online video conferencing means users can meet face-to-face with colleagues, customers or suppliers here or overseas, on-demand, every day. Doing so can substantially improve productivity and operational efficiencies, and significantly reduce meeting-related travel costs.

Express Virtual Meetings' new video conferencing service differs from the company's recently released HD Video Rooms solution.

"It appeals to SMBs who want to modernise their business as inexpensively as possible. Any room or space can be transformed into a local or global meeting hub on-demand. Users without access to an internet connection need not miss out on attending or participating in a video conference as they can dial-in using a telephone line," Ms Goding explained.

The service has a pay-as-you-go pricing structure. There are no complicated subscriptions or restrictions on meeting duration or 'seats'. Account holders can create as many reservations or 'conference rooms' as needed at no cost.

"Our state-of-the-art conferencing technology provides exceptional, enterprise-grade HD audio and video quality on every conference. Military-grade security encryption ensures the highest level of security, preventing unauthorised listening and alleviating privacy concerns," Ms Goding concluded.

Express Virtual Meetings' on-demand, cloud-based video conferencing solution is supported by their Australia-based 24-hour customer service centre. Express Virtual Meetings also offers new customers a 7-day obligation free trial. For more information, visit
