

FlowConnect creates new position to support its business growth

Schwantler brings comprehensive experience to the role

Leading case management software company, FlowConnect, announces that Eric Schwantler has been appointed to the newly created position of Business Development Manager.

Prior to joining FlowConnect he was with Schneider Electric and several other companies specialising in industrial automation and software for critical infrastructure solutions.

Eric has more than 25 years' experience in management of full software lifecycle and development of customers and channels on a global basis. Based in Sydney, he assumes a range of responsibilities which will capitalise on his comprehensive expertise gained in Australia and abroad.

CEO of FlowConnect, Colin Hoschke says "We will draw heavily on Eric's achievements from product development and launch, to the building of a sales and support organisation which is able to meet the accelerating demand for our specialist cloud-based case management solutions in a professional and timely way."

With a certificate of engineering in electronics and computing from New Zealand's Christchurch Polytechnic Mr Schwantler began his career in New Zealand, broadened his experience with several relocations to the USA but the most part he has been based in Australia.

About FlowConnect:

FlowConnect Pty Ltd is an Australian based and owned company, established in 1994, which develops solutions focused on business process automation (BPA). The FlowConnect business process automation platform powers all the company's solutions, enabling clients to embed and enforce business processes, quality and compliance in their operations. Its flagship product, VisiCase, is a cloud-based service that supports the complex case management required in justice administration, as well as the increasingly person-centred care requirements of human care delivery.
