

GIS People Awarded Place on NSW ICT Services Scheme

Geospatial industry leader GIS People has announced that New South Wales Government has awarded them a place on the NSW Government ICT Services Scheme. Being part of this panel means GIS People is now pre-approved to undertake work for NSW Government and other eligible customers.

GIS People's Managing Director, Igor Stjepanovic, says: "I'm very pleased about this news. While we are proudly headquartered in Brisbane, it is not a secret that GIS People has both national and international expansion plans. NSW in particular provides an excellent environment for doing business, and this progressive state is already an experienced consumer of advanced location intelligence services – our speciality. We look forward to further strengthening our existing relationship with NSW Government and our clients based in NSW."

This arrangement adds to GIS People's placement on a growing list of both government and private panels.
