

Is your Media Agency stuck for inclusive content? Lisa Cox, disability advocate, can help.

Introducing Lisa Cox - A reliable and informed addition to your source network.

Is your media team looking to reach a larger audience and be more diverse by including someone with disabilities to discuss any number of non-disability issues? Or are you looking for comment on a news story related to disability?

Introducing Lisa Cox - A reliable and informed addition to your source network.

Lisa is an award-winning writer, author, motivational speaker, consultant, wife, model and activist who, for over a decade, has been passionately creating visibility for disability and has amassed a loyal following of nearly 100K across different social platforms.

She has written for national and international publications like Huff Post, Harper's Bazaar and Sydney Morning Herald and has featured on multiple podcasts. Lisa is a valuable source for busy journalists, producers and others in your media team.

With a strong professional background in media, Lisa understands the news cycle, has an appreciation for how your story is put together and knows about the constraints of deadlines. Lisa is also the Disability Affairs Officer at Media Diversity Australia and her ability to relate to and connect with both a disabled and non-disabled audience makes her an ideal source. Based in Brisbane, Australia, Lisa is available at short notice for comment or can travel to you.

E. media@lisacox.co | M. +61 0413 617 473 | www.lisacox.co | Instagram: @lisacox.co | #VisibilityForDisability

Contacts

Lisa Cox
0413617473
mailto: media@lisacox.co