

Kroos Logistics Move And Transfer To A New Warehouse

Kroos Logistics removals , moving company located in Perth move to a new warehouse to expand their range of services.

Perth, Western Australia, 24th June 2020

Despite the Covid19 crisis and the slow down of the activity the last few months, KROOS Logistics, Western Australian company specialised in removals, business relocation and packing, decided to move their activity to a new warehouse in Hamilton Hill. Eric Abhervé, founder and managing director said "Every businesses in Perth had a hard time with this virus crisis, but thanks to our faithful customers and the help of the government, we made it. We would like to warmly thanks our customer they follow our instructions for safety regarding the Covid-19". Unlike other competitors in Perth, Kroos decided to expand and diversify their activity. Eric Abhervé told us: "The market is definitely down and WA premier announced a recession for the whole next year . Of course , this is not a good news, but I believe in the health of Australian economy and I am confident and optimistic for the future" KROOS Logistics will move in a new warehouse in Hamilton Hill and planned to expand.

"Indeed, having the market down can be a good opportunity to create and develop. We planned to establish a new activity with our Junk Removals services and later in October, a crate rental activity for businesses and private" Kroos Logistics removals operate all over Perth (going from Mandurah to Joondalup and Armadale). We deliver Western Australia country town too with our rural relocation service(country move), 500 km from Perth.
