

Matching Valentine's gifts for partners

Perfect idea for couples who can't decide what to buy

Strategy.

Action.

Results.

Can't think what to buy your loved one this Valentine's Day?

Why not buy each other a gift that will help keep everyone safe on the roads and help prevent your partner from losing their licence: a personal breathalyser.

A perfect gift for couples who like to socialise is an AlcoSense personal breathalyser from Andatech, a leader in personal safety products. Using fuel cell technology, AlcoSense breathalysers provide accurate blood alcohol concentration (BAC) readings and are easy to use, compact and affordable. The AlcoSense Verity comes in three different colours (blue, navy and white), while two new models, the Elite BT and Nexus, come with a Bluetooth enabled mobile app that allows users to check their testing history and results via an iSober application. It's available on both iOS and Android devices.

The app connects to the camera, allowing users to capture themselves blowing into the device as a form of record-keeping.

Andatech offers the largest range of Australian Standards Certified personal breathalysers with prices starting from $119 for the AlcoSense Novo.
