The Latest in Skill Development Workshops captured on Blockchain and delivered by Australian talent.

June 1st 2020 (Adelaide, South Australia) — MCBI Learning and Development, a local provider of innovative global learning and development solutions for high-performing organizations, announces a new series of live short-format live digital workshops to teach the crucial skills that individuals need to compete in today's competitive workforce. As a result of COVID the organisation has rapidly transformed the learning solutions and now offers live online workshops with skilled facilitators.

This format has proven to be a huge hit with ASEAN corporates and individuals alike. The sessions are conducted at a time so as to allow the Asian market to join in and learn from Australian businesses and vice versa.

Ideal for individual learners or for organizations seeking new innovative learning and development courses for its employees, MCBI Learning and Development's live two-hour workshops are now open for registration on a variety of topics suitable for English-language learners worldwide.

"At MCBI Learning and Development, we are proud to be the first-ever block-chain enabled learning provider to offer live, micro-format workshops at such a high caliber of quality and engagement level, and at a price that is accessible for so many people from around the world to experience," said Marina Pullin, Managing Director of MCBI Learning and Development.

These new micro-workshops are specifically designed to meet the current skill needs of the global workforce who seek immediate and rapid opportunities to acquire in-demand skills. Following each micro-workshop, learners receive a validated record of their skill development rather than a simple record of attendance. This independent certification allows learners to effectively showcase their skill-sets among global employers and set themselves apart from the competition.

For businesses interested in their staff's well being and resiliency, the online sessions are proving to be the antidote for isolation and focus. The live workshop topics include a vast array of business building topics including How to have challenging communication, Adaptive Leadership, Developing a Growth Mindset, Process Mapping, Negotiation 101, Digital Architecture, Communication Skills for the Virtual Team and much more. Pricing per workshop begins at $59.95 AUD.
