Meth contamination is a very real issue for people buying or renting property and can cost thousands of dollars to remediate. Meth labs are toxic to the environment, harmful to life, and cause property value to decrease. Methamphetamine is a highly addictive stimulant of the nervous system. Its physical and physiological effects are offset by the highly toxic effects on the body and escalating costs to society.

METH RESIDUE TESTING IS IMPORTANT FOR REAL ESTATE AGENTS, HOME OWNERS AND INSURANCE COMPANIES

Regular meth testing of properties by Property Managers and Real Estate Agents provides important information about the tenants and is a best practice before moving new people into a hazardous environment. Meth Residue Testing is useful for concerned parents, tenants, and landlords who suspect that their property may be suffering methamphetamine contamination. Methamphetamine Residue Testing is useful for insurance companies and banks as a tool for gathering evidence or making important business decisions.
