

NBN Co signs up Qubit Consulting for identity and access management services

Sydney, Australia, 15th October 2012: Australian systems integration firm Qubit Consulting has signed a professional services agreement with NBN Co, the company building and operating the National Broadband Network, to provide identity and access management services. Qubit Consulting will provide the identity and access management (IDAM) services for employees and contractors across all of NBN Co's internal shared services, which manage NBN Co's optical fibre, fixed wireless and satellite operations. The eventual value of the contract will depend on the total work delivered, and is expected to exceed $2 million. Qubit Consulting has worked with NBN Co in the past as a sub-contractor. This is the first direct engagement between the two companies. Quote from Qubit Consulting "This is a landmark deal for Qubit Consulting," said director John Jones. "We've been building a solid reputation for delivering IDAM services in the region, and this new contract will see us working alongside Accenture to support NBN Co's continued expansion and rollout." Quote from NBN Co Peter Watson, NBN Co's Officer Information Security, said: "Our employees and contractors need quick access to secure company services. The appointment of Qubit Consulting will help us ensure we are able to protect our data while providing appropriate access to services and products." Background on Qubit Consulting Qubit Consulting has been in business for nearly seven years. Based on Sydney's Northern Beaches, its directors John Jones and Andrew Hayes, and many of its consultants, hail from Sun Microsystems.
