New Industry Association for Finance & Mortgage Brokers

Finance Broker Education & Training Australia an Industry Association for Finance and Mortgage Brokers (FBETA) announced today the launch of its entry into the mortgage broking market to help up-skill brokers. Australia's first digital Industry Association is a not-for-profit and independent from the banks and aggregators that hopes to yield a wider range of training and education offerings for mortgage brokers.

The rationale for such a move was explained by FBETA CEO Shane Reynolds "From the perspective of the marketplace, proper education and training is central to transforming this industry, the association will create a unified mission, it's a win – win; Our education platform will turn broker potential into performance, we know from the royal commission that education is a key part of delivering the highest standards of service".
