

Precision AutoWerk Fixes Newer Models Too

In order to compete in the burgeoning international market, cars are being released with extraordinary features, such as gesture control, where phone calls can be answered and ended with a wave of the hand, and the volume of music can be controlled with a slow twirl of a finger, or powered doors and tailgates, so you can shop to your heart's content and not have to worry about putting down all the bags to open the boot before loading it all in.

There are also more obviously useful features, such as thermal night vision, so you can drive more safely at night, but others such as music streaming and heated armrests which are clearly novelty features for those who want to maximize their time living the good life—and why not? Nowadays, cars are more than just a means to an end. They still take us from point A to B, but they also have the power to portray parts of our personalities through design and added features.
