Revolution for Climate Change Provides a Voice of Reason for Challenging Times

It's only through discussion and examination that solutions to issues such as taxes, clean energy and inequality can be resolved. Revolution for Climate Change is tackling those discussions in a thoughtful way for Australians and people around the globe.

Revolution for Climate Change addresses themes that are of importance to anyone residing on Planet Earth. The website talks about issues ranging from healthcare and preserving native cultures to education and childcare. Written with care and seasoned with a helping of common sense, the articles are an eye-opening look at the state of the planet, its people and the future.

Environmental issues facing countries are eloquently addressed. Melting ice caps, rising ocean levels, and extreme storms aren't localized. Native species are decimated by the predations of man, have gone extinct, and countries are facing natural disasters on unprecedented levels. Populations are suffering from starvation, lack of healthcare, and the COVID-19 pandemic.

The author doesn't ignore the politics of climate change or economies. Governments are elected to work for the people, but parties are dangerously polarized. The writer points out that the very laws put in place to govern often hinder that process and doing what's best for constituencies.

The pandemic has affected livelihoods and economies throughout every country. Politicians are concerned with maintaining economies. Individuals simply want to be able to support their family. The writer postulates that a new economy needs to evolve that doesn't flourish at the expense of society and fosters a philosophy that embraces philanthropy.

Revolution for Climate Change provides readers with thoughtful insights gained from the writer's extensive travel, living in multiple areas, and being a keen observer of human behavior. The author's views may be seen as innovative or controversial, but are always presented with the hope of providing enlightenment for those that seek it and value honesty.
