

Therapy Works Offers Oncology Acupuncture Services in New South Wales

Therapy Works is proud to offer oncology acupuncture services to cancer patients throughout the Newport area.

New South Wales, AU, 16 October 2020 – Therapy Works is proud to offer oncology acupuncture services to cancer patients throughout Sydney's Northern Beaches.

Therapy Works, an Australian functional medicine clinic, is providing a valuable alternative health service to oncology patients throughout the Newport area. They are dedicated to providing this service at a subsidised cost to their patients, in addition to accepting health fund rebates. When the cost is subsidised, it makes oncology acupuncture services available and accessible to more people.

According to Dr. Natalie Dalton, "we're not treating cancer, we're treating patients going through chemotherapy as acupuncture does offset the side effects of chemotherapy. Cancer is expensive and best quality care shouldn't be based on whether you can afford it. What we'd like to do is support patients through their chemotherapy regime to help them track from one chemo treatment to the next without having to either drop out of their prescribed chemo treatment plan or to reduce the dosage of the medication prescribed by the oncologist."

Therapy Works provides a wide variety of therapies and healthcare services, including oncology acupuncture, to help patients to better manage their symptoms and conditions. These services are all offered on its website at www.therapyworks.com.au.

Dr. Natalie Dalton continues to state that, "my integrated approach to treatment has a solid foundation in Western Medical Sciences. I use clinical nutrition and western herbal medicine to supplement my primary therapeutic modalities of Chinese herbal medicine, acupuncture, and remedial massage. I'll recommend a treatment plan for you, which may include several modalities, bundled together, such as acupuncture with remedial massage, or clinical nutrition with Chinese herbal medicine."

With more and more people seeking alternative therapies today, it can be difficult to know where to turn. That's where Therapy Works comes in. With a focus on functional medicine, Therapy Works' services aim to help the community in a variety of ways, naturally.

As Dr. Natalie Dalton explains, "you can benefit from my diverse education, the breadth of my experience, my capacity for passionate interest and my delivery of skills and services that offer you a tangibly authentic point of difference in care. I have immense respect for the energetic systems operating within our bodies. My understanding is continually evolving through my practice, on-going training, and with a network of peers who are committed to working with the whole person – physically, psychologically, and spiritually."
