

To Regional or Not: Investing in property safely with Anjay Zazulak

If there's one thing that COVID-19 lockdown has taught us, it's that small, convenient city-living apartments aren't as convenient as we thought. They were great for being close to work, but with more Australians working from home and lockdowns in place, that apartment can feel like a shoebox.

What about going regional with bigger homes, outdoor areas, cheaper living costs?

A hot topic in property, articles like Domain's Remote buying on the rise as investors turn to regional areas [1] shout about regional living being the new property hot spot, the best move, and great for investing for that extra bit of cash. But, if everyone's doing it, how can you invest safely and set yourself up for a healthy financial future?

Anjay Zazulak, author of The Homeowner's Guide to Property Investing: Where to Start, What to Buy, has been buying and investing in regional areas for years. His easy to follow book tackles the most common property investment myths and guides you through his proven purchasing framework.

Anjay wrote his book as the go-to for new and old investors alike by drawing on knowledge from his years of investing and other investment professionals. Determined to help more Australians manage a safe and successful property portfolio, Anjay shares a process that removes the common hurdles to investing in property.

Practising what he preaches, Anjay invests in regional properties while spending limited time in the city for work. And he is adamant that, 'If I can do it, then so too can the average Aussie.'

Want to get in touch with Anjay?

Mobile: 0410363362

Anjay's email: anjay@anjayz.com

Company email: anjay@oasiskeen.com.au

Linkedin: www.linkedin.com/in/anjayzazulak/

Facebook: www.facebook.com/AnjayZazulakPropertyBuyer/ Instagram: www.instagram.com/anjayzazu/

[1] <https://www.domain.com.au/advice/investors-are-increasingly-comfortable-purchasing-an-investment-property-without-an-inspection-983353/>

Contacts

Jason Smith

(07) 3277 0206

mailto: info@oceanreeve.com