

Track'em awarded Downer contract for LNG project

Trackem Pty Ltd (Track'em), leader in cloud-based tracking technology, is pleased to announce that they have signed a new contract with Downer to track assets, materials and digitise the inspections and Quality Assurance (QA) process for a key upstream Coal Seam Gas (CSG) development project.

Through their Materials Tracking Software, Track'em will provide full visibility on materials from fabrication to installation as well as a digitised audit and assurance trail to ensure materials are delivered on time and are preserved and installed in a condition that complies with the required project and Australian standards.

"We are excited to continue our relationship with Downer," says Kashif Saleem, founder and CEO, Track'em. "We will implement our industry-leading tracking system to provide insight into the status and location of items while providing one source of the truth for all important QA documentation."

"Having worked with Track'em successfully on multiple projects across Australia, we are convinced we have chosen the right partner and solution for the job," says Troy Parry, Contract Manager with Downer's Asset Services business.

"Track'em's technology and apps allow us to perform inspections and fill out checklists and documentation in the field digitally. Not only does this save time, it also benefits data quality and enables us to consolidate important information in one trusted system that can be accessed by the teams involved."

The contract is set for a term of 12-months, with a possible extension for continuous engagement on the project.
