WHY MATT COOPER GIVES A SHIT ABOUT HIS COLON !

JUNE IS BOWEL CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

RUGBY LEAGUE LEGEND MATT COOPER GETS BEHIND IT!

KEEP YOUR ENVIRONMENT CLEAN WITH COLONIC HYDRATION

Rugby League legend Matt Cooper is getting behind Bowel Cancer Awareness Month in June and Red Apple Day on Wednesday June 19 and encourages everyone to have a colonic irrigation. Colon Care Centres at Surry Hills, Bondi, Randwick and Kogarah are giving away Red Apples every day in June to all visitors at all their 4 clinics.

Matt, who played his entire 267 game career with the Dragons including 13 State of Origins and 7 for Australia, plus starred on TV shows The Full Monty, Celebrity Apprentice and Dancing With The Stars, says “ You have to give a shit about your colon! It's important to have a colonic irrigation, in fact I'm having 3 this month! It makes you feel healthy and good, and it's good for you and your colon.”

Colon Care Centre owner Anna Paredes has been keeping colons hydrated and healthy for 25 years. Anna says “ After having your bowel checks, avoid gastrointestinal diseases by keeping your environment clean and live a long life. Don't let Hereditary Bowel Cancer get you down. Stay clean and avoid bowel cancer today with colonic hydration. I also invite all Doctors to support Bowel Cancer Awareness Month and if they call me I'll give them each a basket of red apples for their surgery”.

Anna who is also the President of the Australian Colonic Hydrotherapy Association has been keeping colons healthy for 25 years and invites anyone with any questions to call her on 02 9211 1174. www.coloncarecentre.com.au
