

Wikifashion wants you

Allowing fashion lovers to catalogue style in a highly effective and collaborative way

A new website completely dedicated to all things fashion, with the same features of Wikipedia, but with a lot more style has fast become the place to find and catalogue fashion. Ms. Veenstra, project coordinator for Wikifashion says that she 'saw a need on the Internet, for a space where designers and the fashion-obsessed could compile and look for anything style related- from accessories, haute couture to eyeshadows. The uniqueness of Wikifashion is that it is completely created and edited by its users, who are able to search for items by designer, category or collection'.

Wikifashion is currently asking for users to contribute to the site. So if you are an expert on buttons, love Marc Jacobs or know everything about Chanel head to Wikifashion.com to do your part.

Contacts

Madeline Veenstra

0405 376 702

mailto: press@wikifashion.com